

Sometimes donating things to people on the streets doesn't have the impact you would hope for. Your intention...

But only a day later, the blankets are wet, dirty and discarded.

Want to make a difference in this community?

Consider donating to the many services working hard to help those in need get back on their feet. These services know the best ways to help.

Donating where it counts the most will help people get off the street and have a fresh start.
